AKKI LATEST COLLECTIONS

HUMAN RESOURCES POLICY

Document status: Demonstration sample | Version: 1.0 | Effective date: 01 November 2026

Important: This is fictional sample content created only to test the RAG chatbot. It is not an approved company policy. Replace and verify every rule with the authorized HR/management team before employee use.

1. Purpose and scope

This sample HR policy describes basic workplace expectations for hypothetical AKKI LATEST COLLECTIONS employees. It is intended for testing document retrieval and question answering.

2. Working relationship and conduct

Employees are expected to treat customers, colleagues, suppliers and visitors respectfully. Harassment, discrimination, intimidation, threats and abusive conduct are not acceptable.

Employees should perform assigned duties honestly, follow reasonable instructions from authorized supervisors and protect company property.

3. Dress code and personal presentation

Employees working in customer-facing stores should wear clean, neat and appropriate clothing suitable for their assigned role. Any role-specific uniform or branding requirement will be communicated by the store manager.

Employees should maintain good personal hygiene and wear required safety equipment in warehouse or stock-handling areas.

4. Customer service

Employees should greet customers politely, provide accurate product information and avoid promises about discounts, delivery dates, returns or stock unless confirmed by an authorized system or manager.

Customer complaints should be recorded and escalated to the store manager or designated customer-service contact.

5. Confidentiality and data protection

Employees must protect confidential business information, including pricing plans, supplier details, customer contact information, employee records and internal reports.

Passwords and access credentials must not be shared. Customer or employee information must only be accessed for authorized work purposes.

Suspected loss, unauthorized disclosure or misuse of company or customer information should be reported promptly to the manager or HR.

6. Workplace safety and company property

Employees should keep work areas clean and report hazards, damaged equipment, accidents or injuries to their supervisor promptly.

Company devices, keys, documents, stock and other assets should be used responsibly and returned when requested or when employment ends.

7. Grievances and disciplinary matters

Employees may raise workplace concerns with their manager or HR. Concerns should be handled respectfully and, where possible, confidentially.

Potential misconduct may be reviewed by management and HR. Any action should follow the final approved company procedure and applicable law.

8. HR contact

For questions about employment records, benefits, workplace concerns or policy interpretation, contact the designated HR representative. This sample does not provide actual contact details.